SAVINGS BOND SALES BELOW CURRENCY

The mid-year report of Savings Bonds sales in Virginia is cause for both encouraging and disappointing concern to all interested in the country's economic welfare and soundness of the American dollar.

June sales were $6,617,442 as compared to sales of $6,016,191 in June, 1954, an increase of 10%. On a six months' basis, an increment of 15% is shown in the purchase of E and H Savings Bonds by Virginians. Sales at mid-year 1954 totaled $38,653,547, whereas the mid-year sales of this year total $44,403,759.

Inasmuch as the state, as a whole, has reached only $44,403,759 of its year's goal of $90,800,000, it is still short by $996,241 of being current in accomplishment. Therein lies the cause of disappointment.

DRIVER TOO YOUNG

Detroit.- Mrs. Maxine Metzen, 35, gave her son, Edward Jr., 13, permission to drive the family car up the driveway into the garage. Edward apparently confused the brake and the accelerator. The car shot across the lawn, smashed an 8-foot picture window in a neighbor's house and came to a halt in their living room. The car was badly damaged and the neighbor's damage was estimated at $5,000.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of husband and father, Ray Baldwin who passed away four years ago, today, July 13, 1951.

Darling husband and father, you have left us.
Left this world and pain, earth has lost a treasure,
Heaven a precious jewel has gained.
Some may think we have forgotten you,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the sorrow,
That we suffer all the while.
If we had all this world to give,
We would give it, yes, and more,
To hear your voice and see your smile,
And greet you at the door.
They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps one to forget,
How much we miss you yet.
All we can do now, dear husband and father,
Is remember the loving things you taught us,
When to your grave we place flowers,
And we feel you are near us,
As we sadly linger there.
— Sadly missed by
Wife and Children.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving memory of our dear son and brother, James Thurman Gibson, who passed away eleven years ago today, July 17, 1955.
We do not need a special day to bring you to our minds,
The days we do not think of you are very hard to find.
The happy hours we once enjoyed when we were all together,
But, Oh, how changed it all is now gone forever.
Please keep him dear Jesus in thy keeping,
Until we all reach that shining shore.
Then, dear God, bring us all together as we always were before.
—Your loving
Mom, Dad, Charlie and Billy.

CULLING POULTRY

By Jim Smith
Appomattox County Agent

Reports indicate that by October the laying flocks will be 6 to 8% smaller than a year ago. This means that better egg prices are to be expected, therefore this is a good time to have a laying house full of good layers. If you don't have enough pullets to fill a house, keep some of the best layers from your present flock. The best ones to keep over are the last ones to stop laying. The hens that stop laying first are naturally the poorest layers.

If you watch your flock closely, it is easy to tell when a hen stops laying. By culling as they go out of production, you not only save feed but you will receive a better price per pound than you will later.

If you have sufficient number of young birds to fill the poultry houses ,you will be money ahead to see that all layers kept are of the young type and sell off the old producers.

Prepare Pullets For Laying House

There are several things we must do if we are to get well developed pullets into the laying house and be sure they lay throughout the winter.

The first you will want to remember is to give the birds plenty to eat. You cannot starve anything into profit. However, you will want to take advantage of the many cheap feeds that are available throughout the summer, such as, providing a grass sod or pasture for them to use and also the use of homegrown grains wherever possible. A good grade of growing mash should be kept before the birds most of the time.

Most of the larger feed companies prepare two types of mash. One to be fed by itself and one to be fed with grain. The mash that is to be fed by itself generally contains 15 to 17% protein and the one that is to be fed with grain contains 18 to 20% protein. You should check the label or tag on the feed sack to be sure that you know which you are getting.

If grain is being fed with the mash, the birds should be given all the scratch or whole mixed grains they will clean up from late afternoon to roosting time. It is generally a little cheaper to feed a mash-grain ration, especially when you use homegrown grain.

Equal parts of whole corn, wheat and oats make an excellent mixture for summer feeding. If you do not have pasturage or green oods for your birds this summer, feed them lawn clippings, alfalfa, cabbage and lettuce from time to time. This helps to stimulate their appetites and give them added vitamins.

By the way, grit should also be kept before your birds. As you know, grit is the chicken's teeth.

Next, it is extremely important during these hot summer months that the birds must have plenty of fresh clean water and it should be kept in the shade. You will want to keep these houses open in order that they may be well ventilated and that they have sanitary surroundings. Many of our houses have been constructed for winter use and during the hot summer months, it is indeed difficult to keep the place in condition for birds to stay as it is too hot. It becomes too humid and, in many cases, there are no roosts for the birds. Therefore, we should train our birds to roost. It is not necessary to have an inclined roost as we see on many farm poultry houses. All that is necessary is the roost about 18 to 24 inches above the ground with a hardware cloth underneath in order that the droppings may fall through. Therefore, we preserve the droppings and they can be used to fertilize gardens, plants and in the field.

Also, it is a good idea to have shavings on the floor itself. This keeps a dry place for the chickens to walk and cuts down the possibilities of diseases.

Another problem we have sometimes in our houses is that of cannibalism. The chickens are pecking each other, pulling out feathers. This can be controlled normally by lowering the number of birds we have in a house. We normally think of having about 3 square feet for each bird in the house. In the summer when it is hot, more space is desirable.

Speaking of this thing of water and keeping the birds cool through ventilation and proper amounts of water, it is a good idea to add additional water to fountains in our chicken houses and yards during the summer.

Don't fill these hoppers yith mash too full as this will cause the chickens to waste a great deal of feed and increase our cost of producing eggs.

These things outlined will help you to put into the laying house healthy, comfortable pullets, and you can be fairly sure of a good return on your investment. Just remember the care you give your pullets today will determine the number of eggs you will get tomorrow.
